

Skip Weisman
Building Your Championship Company

7 Reasons Meeting Planners Hire Skip

He's Been In the Trenches & Has Done Everything He'll Be Telling Your People to Do

As a CEO in minor league professional baseball Skip led small business teams beginning at just 26-years-old. Starting his small business leadership career at such a young age gave him learning experiences and stories that form the foundation of the lessons and strategies your audiences will takeaway.

"You really inspired me! Your keynote address gave me the guts to begin shouting from the mountaintop... 'Hire me, I am good at what I do!'"

Mark Curtis, TV Reporter & Political Consultant – San Francisco, CA
@ Leadership & Career Summit - Danville, CA

Provides an Interactive Learning Experience that Is Remembered & Used

Skip continues to study adult learning strategies and applies the most appropriate, state-of-the-art techniques based on audience needs and desired event outcomes. Specific and quick commitment and accountability activities are applied so that your audience members leave with a commitment to actionable takeaways.

"Skip, today you were the most valuable speaker I experienced! Your execution of the message was superb, you engaged the audience in such a way the hour went by so fast I couldn't believe it was over already!"

Pam Titus, Project Manager – Session Attendee
@ Southern New England Project Management Institute Symposium

Partners With Meeting Planners for Pre-Event Promotion & Post-Event Accountability

Skip's keynote speaking packages provide opportunities for collaboration on two value-added options. One is the unique opportunity for a pre-event early registration promotional webinar of related content, and a post-event accountability and coaching webinar for maintaining momentum.

"Skip was really easy to work with and he even helped us promote the event. Several people told me they signed for the conference after experiencing Skip's pre-event webinar."

Paige Kanode, V.P. Professional Development
@ Southwest Virginia Project Management Institute Symposium

Engaging & Relatable Presentation Style

Skip's delivery style and storytelling approach brings his audiences into the presentations with him, allowing audiences to relive his experience in ways that connect Skip's examples to their own business and life situations, making them relatable, adaptable, and applicable.

"Skip delivered an engaging, enjoyable and fun keynote, that also provided concrete ways to become aware of areas where you can improve your communication!"

Marie Hood, Director of Training - Partners Healthcare - Boston, MA
@ Massachusetts Hospital Association annual Women's Leadership Conference

Invests Time to Understand Your Industry & Audience Issues to Customize

After engaging Skip to speak at your event he will invest time researching the organization, industry, and potential audience members, with custom interviews to understand real-time issues related to his keynote topic, so that the audience feels understood, and the content is relatable and applicable.

"Any event planner that's considering you as a speaker will be happy with the results. The value you brought to our event was that you did the research and connected your message to the role of our audience so it was very practical and applicable!"

Wayne Rambow, President
@ Southern Alberta Project Management Institute Symposium

"Skip's a great speaker. He communicated very well with us to understand what we wanted as takeaways and he delivered that once he stepped on the stage as our opening keynote!"

Todd Pittman, Conference Chairman
@ North Carolina MGMA Annual Conference

Is the Easiest, Most Responsive Speaker You Will Ever Work With

As a leadership and workplace communication expert, Skip walks his talk. He consistently communicates and responds to meet all deadlines so the event stays on track and stress-free in relation to the keynote speaker. He communicates expectations early so everyone understands what he needs to deliver a high-value experience for your audience.

"Once you engage Skip as your keynote speaker you better be ready because he will respond to you and he expects you respond to him. The thing that impressed us the most at the beginning of our speaker selection process was his responsiveness when we reached out to him. Skip carried that responsiveness throughout our planning for the event and after it was over!"

Jimmy Godard, Past President & Conference Chairman
@ Portland, Oregon Project Management Institute Annual Conference

"Skip, it was really easy to work with you as our keynote speaker this year. You were really put together and had all the things a meeting planner needs from a speaker ready to go and that's really helpful to make the event go smoothly!"

Melissa Klingberg, Meeting Planner & Conference Coordinator
@ North Carolina MGMA Annual Conference

Audience Members Will Get Access to Have Questions Answered Long After the Event Is Over

Because there's never enough time to answer everyone's questions and not everyone will ask a question in a public environment, there are going to be unanswered questions. For this reason Skip always offers audience members the opportunity to email or call him with questions after the event, so they can get the help they need to apply his tips, techniques, strategies effectively.